

BIOBANK REFUSAL FORM

With this Biobank Refusal Form, you can cancel your biobank consent and object to the processing of your samples and data in the Biobank after sampling or proactively before giving consent.

By signing this document, I confirm that:

- I want to cancel my biobanking consent. Consent can be cancelled before the sample is collected or at the latest before the sample and related data are handed over to the biobank. After cancellation, samples or data will not be collected in the Biobank. The Biobank interprets the withdrawal of consent as including the exercise of the right to object.
- I want to use my right to object according to Article 21 of the EU General Data Protection Regulation. My samples and data in the Biobank may no longer be used in biobank research in the future, and my samples and data may not be collected in or transferred to the Biobank. Exercising the right to object cannot be partial, it applies to all samples and data in the biobank.
- after exercising the right to object, my samples and data will no longer be processed or handed over to new studies. My samples and data will be deleted from the Blood Service Biobank's register as soon as possible after the Biobank has received the prohibition. The Blood Service Biobank will notify me when the deletion is done.
- I understand that after the Biobank receives my notification about the use of the right to object, all my data (except information about the use of the right to object) and my samples will be deleted from the Biobank's register. After the prohibition, I can no longer make a request for information to the Biobank, for example inquire into which studies my samples and data have been handed over to, or which research results have been generated from them.
